

MD Koenig Veterinary Technology World Vets Scholarship

Purpose

- Veterinary technicians are essential team members in all aspects of veterinary medicine. This scholarship will recognize one outstanding individual by honoring them with a 1 week paid project fee for the World Vets International Veterinary Medicine Training Program. The training program is located in Otavalo, Ecuador. The 2019 project fee is valued at $1800.00.

Details

- You must be currently enrolled in an AVMA accredited veterinary technology program or a graduate not exceeding 6 months after successful completion of such program.
- You must enroll and attend a summer 2019 World Vets IVM session that has availability. It is nontransferable and non-refundable.
- Applications are open to US citizens only.
- Recipient is responsible for making all travel arrangements and is responsible for these expenses along with all other expenses related to the IVM session.
- Recipient is responsible for completing necessary applications/forms provided by World Vets to attend the IVM training (see World Vets website for details)
- If awarded, you will be asked to write and submit a short essay on your IVM experience including how it impacted you educationally and culturally.

To qualify

1. Complete scholarship application.
2. Provide a 300-400 typed word essay on the following topic:

Explain your interest, understanding and personal plight against pet overpopulation. As a veterinary technician, how will you make an impact against pet overpopulation?

3. Provide proof of enrollment or graduation from a veterinary technology program

Submission

- Submit application, essays and proof of enrollment to: MD Koenig Scholarship PO Box 12231 St. Louis MO 63157

Applications

- Must be postmarked by March 15, 2019
- Recipient will be notified by World Vets no later than April 15, 2019
- Scholarship (project fee) will be paid directly to World Vets